The sculpted white acrylic rosettes of the Rose can transform a space from a brightly-lit conference hall to an intimate romantic wedding venue elegantly and effortlessly. The undulating translucent white panels catch and soften the light creating dappled, almost moonlight-like, patterns on the floor when illuminated with recessed down-spots.

When down-lit, the white panels take on a silver, mercury-like quality; side-lit from cove-mounted light sources, these sculptural elements emanate a very even, bright-white light. Switching between down-spot and side-lit light sources completely transforms the quality of the light and the perception of the space.

The Rose comes in a wide range of sizes to suit any space. Additional panels can be added to create custom configurations that encompass an entire ceiling.

Contact the factory directly for custom height, color and specialty resin panel options.

NOTE: The Rose does not contain any lighting component. It is designed to be used in conjunction with lighting components such as recessed down-spots provided and specified by others. The Rose is a sculptural ceiling element designed to be illuminated and space-defining, not a stand-alone light fixture.
